President and CEO of the GHCC among the 100 Most Influential Atlantans

Atlanta - June 19th - Today, Tisha R. Tallman, President and CEO of the Georgia Hispanic Chamber of Commerce, was recognized as one of the 100 Most Influential Atlantans by the Atlanta Business Chronicle.

“This is a great honor for me and the Georgia Hispanic Chamber of Commerce. It affirms the importance of our domestic and international work,” said Tallman. “This recognition comes on the eve of the GHCC 25th Anniversary Annual Awards Gala to be held tomorrow.”

“These leaders wield their tremendous influence in a multitude of ways, often in public and sometimes in private, and their influence is felt by residents, business and organizations across Atlanta, the state, the nation and the world,” wrote Chronicle Editor David Allison in an introduction to the special section.

The GHCC is the only Hispanic organization and one of the three chambers of commerce in the publication list.
